

Dear Reader,

Please find below the editorial synopsis for the Q3.2022 issue of The DESK. Trusted by bond traders to provide the best information on market structure, data and trade execution.

Using a unique model of feedback via monthly off-the-record briefings and quarterly quantitative research, we help buy-side traders navigate the evolving fixed income markets and sell-side traders to better support their clients.

The quarterly magazine as well as daily news site, weekly newsletters and social media feeds give us a constant flow of information to the market, blending a mix of exclusive stories, in-depth trader profiles and technical analysis of trading across the cash and derivatives fixed income markets.

If you are interested in any of the forthcoming coverage please contact the editor, Dan Barnes.

FEATURES:

Lead: EMS/OMS research

Primary research into buy-side use of fixed income execution and order management systems.

Trading: The terrible [Twenty-Twenty-]Twos

An analysis of liquidity, price formation and best execution opportunities in voice and electronic trading during the start of 2022 – and what might be in store for the rest of the year.

Primary markets: Is progress stalling?

Research from Coalition Greenwich indicates the majority of traders have seen no effect to date from primary market electronification programmes. With issuance declining in certain markets – notably HY – the pressure to handle primary markets may decline. We ask if this will slow the progress that is still needed.

Technology: FDC3 – How this can change your trading.

We look at the impact of the interoperability code, FDC3, as a peacemaker in the battle for desktop real estate. In this feature we ask how a head of trading can select which partner in this specialist field to work with.
